

Lori Spadorcia

Lori is the Executive Vice-President of Public Affairs and Partnerships and Chief Strategy Officer at CAMH.

A passionate advocate, Lori is changing the conversation about mental health, improving awareness and understanding of mental illness and working with governments and communities to improve health systems and policy. She supports the alignment of mission critical activities designed to be responsive to CAMH's many stakeholders and is engaging partners and resources to better position the hospital to make a sustainable system contribution to mental health.

As a former senior political advisor, Lori has advanced public policy in areas such as early learning, child care, skills, and innovation. She is devoted to building healthy communities and driving social change.
